

Philanthropy:

Leave a legacy with a charitable remainder trust

Let's say you're charitably inclined but have concerns about maintaining a sufficient amount of income to meet your current needs. The good news is that there's a trust for that: a charitable remainder trust (CRT). This type of trust allows you to support your favorite charity while potentially boosting cash flow, shrinking the size of your taxable estate, and reducing or deferring income taxes.

A CRT in action

You contribute stock or other assets to an irrevocable trust that provides you — and, if you desire, your spouse — with an income stream for life or for a term of up to 20 years. (You can name a noncharitable beneficiary other than yourself or your spouse, but there may be gift tax implications.) At the end of the trust term, the remaining trust assets are distributed to one or more charities you've selected.

When you fund the trust, you can claim a charitable income tax deduction equal to the present value of the remainder interest (subject to applicable limits on charitable deductions). Your annual payouts from the trust can be based on a fixed percentage of the trust's initial value — known as a charitable remainder annuity trust (CRAT). Or they can be based on a fixed percentage of the trust's value recalculated annually — known as a charitable remainder unitrust (CRUT).

CRUTs vs. CRATs

Generally, CRUTs are preferable for two reasons. First, the annual revaluation of the trust assets allows payouts to increase if the trust assets grow, which can allow your income stream to keep up with inflation. Second, you can make additional contributions to CRUTs, but not to CRATs.

The fixed percentage — called the unitrust amount — can range from 5% to 50%. A higher rate increases the income stream, but it also reduces the value of the remainder interest and, therefore, the charitable deduction. Also, to pass muster with the IRS, the present value of the remainder interest must be at least 10% of the initial value of the trust assets.

The determination of whether the remainder interest meets the 10% requirement is made at the time the assets are transferred — it's an actuarial calculation based on the trust's terms. If the ultimate distribution to charity is less than 10% of the amount transferred, there's no adverse tax impact related to the contribution.

Seek advice before acting

CRTs require careful planning and solid investment guidance to ensure that they meet your needs. Before taking action, discuss your options with your Anchin Relationship Partner or a member of Anchin Private Client at 212.840.3456 or info@anchin.com.

Jared Feldman, CPA
Leader
jared.feldman@anchin.com

Mela Garber, CDFA
Tax Leader
mela.garber@anchin.com

1375 Broadway, New York, NY 10018 • 212.840.3456 • www.anchinprivateclient.com

Anchin Private Client Copyright © 2019
This contains information which is general in nature and based on sources which are believed to be authoritative. Specific applications would require consideration of all facts and circumstances by qualified professionals familiar with a taxpayer and therefore we are not liable for the application of any information contained herein. No part of this correspondence may be reproduced or utilized in any form or by any means without written permission from Anchin Private Client.