Overview

Anchin's Tax Controversy services group provides business, personal income, sales and use and other tax controversy services to clients who are experiencing or trying to prevent scrutiny from taxing authorities on their tax filings.

Our team is dedicated to resolving tax disputes within federal, state and local jurisdictions in the most effective and efficient manner possible. We provide an objective viewpoint on tax laws to better navigate a complicated and, often, emotionally charged situation. Our role is to manage the tax audit examination process while aiming to minimize our clients' exposure and costs.

Our credibility with taxing authorities allows us to successfully resolve issues for clients. Our team's extensive knowledge of tax codes and regulations in numerous jurisdictions enables us to represent your tax positions and secure a positive outcome. As an accounting and advisory firm, we are extremely well-equipped to manage tax controversies from a comprehensive accounting and business perspective.

Staffed with former IRS and state tax auditors, our team can provide a rare insight into best practices and strategies. With an insider's view of the taxing authorities' positions, we are able to present clients with the best advice possible.
